Consultation & Design

Matt from Dryspell meeting Mark Heath from The Vale Golf Club, Evesham

From concept to completion, Dryspell Contract Solutions Ltd and IrriConsult UK can offer guidance, advice and solutions through every step of the process. An initial site visit and meeting can be undertaken to establish exactly what the customer is after and this will be followed up with design briefs and discussion about product, right through to the installation of the chosen system and turning our customers visions into a reality.

With years of experience in design, supply and contracting works, we'll be sure to offer the best solutions, tailor-made to the requirements of the customers, to ensure the best possible output from the required system – be that full installs or upgrade works to existing irrigation systems.

We will be on hand and available throughout the entirety of the process, fielding questions and discussing ideas and concepts, allowing the customers to feel involved, engaged and above all overjoyed at seeing the benefits a new system or upgrade work can offer.

Once the consultation is done and you are happy with the process we will then move into the design aspect with Jon Jinks from IrriConsult UK.

IrriConsult UK provides practical, cost effective and independent solutions through a team of Irrigation, Mechanical and Electrical Engineers.

Offering sound, trustworthy advice, based on more than four decades of practical, hands on experience in all aspects of the golf and sports irrigation industry.

Supply & Installation

After over 25 years in the industry, we are well placed to know a thing or two about supplying components for irrigation systems.

Over the years we have developed relationships with some of the leading manufacturers across the globe, which means that we've got you covered for everything irrigation. From tanks, pump-sets and control systems, right through to pipework, fittings and sprinklers - we will supply everything that your new system requires, all at extremely competitive pricing.

Knowing that all components of your system are coming from one supplier allows the customer to keep track of dates and timings for component deliveries and gives you a single point of contact to discuss the inner workings of your system control and functionality.

When it comes to the installation of your new system or the upgrades to your existing set up, we will use trusted and renowned contractors with a proven track record of quality work, to quote for the installation when we send it out to tender, giving the customers peace of mind that they are in extremely capable hands.

Once the quotations have been received, the client will then choose which contractor they would like to undertake the work, based on the presentation and pricing given.

The chosen contractor will be in direct contact with the customers, but both Dryspell and IrriConsult will be available throughout the installation to offer advice and further consultation regarding the system.

Project Profile - The Vale Golf Club, Evesham

Vale Golf & Country Club is a stunning 27-hole golf course, set in 300 acres of glorious Worcestershire countryside. Having worked closely with them for a number of years, supplying components for their old PVC system, we were approached by Course Manager, Mark Heath to see if we would like the chance to quote for a new irrigation system, which would allow Mark and his team to further improve what was already a fantastic setting for golf.

Working in conjunction with Jon Jinks from IrriConsult, who upon consultation with Mark and the Directors at the club, was able to present a fantastic design for a new, bespoke irrigation system, we were able to price up the components and send this list out to a number of established and reputable contractors for tender.

After reviewing the options available to them, Vale decided to go with Inscapes as the principal contractors for the job and the work began at the beginning of December.

We set about getting pipework and other materials over to the club and despite some challenging weather conditions, Inscapes made a fantastic start to the job – installing main 90mm and 110mm pipework in an extremely tidy manner.
